Empowering Zimbabwean youths to sustainability.

-by Marshal W. Munoriyarwa

Youth empowerment entails the process of affording the young generation the ability and authority to take charge of their lives. The ability to take charge and authority to their lives allows youth to be self-sufficient and to sustain their lives. With empowerment, youths are made able to make informed decisions and implement change in their own lives and the lives of other people surrounding them. This clearly leaves us with a conclusion that empowering the youths, empowers everyone since they impact their societies as well with the resources, they will have gained access to through the empowering process.

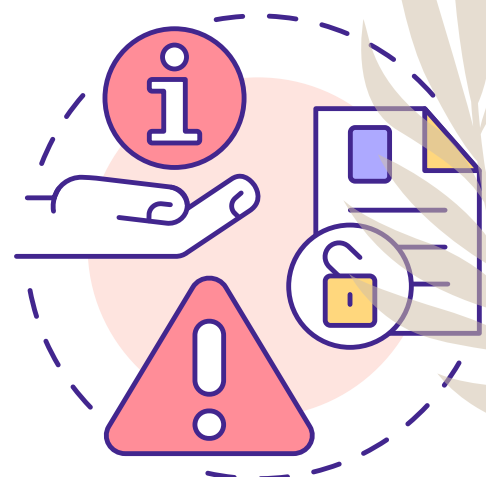

It is of paramount importance to address the issues to do with youth empowerment since the efforts will not only develop the youths but together with the economy at large through direct and indirect ways.

Youth empowerment helps in poverty eradication, foster good governance for a brighter future, improve standard of education, reduces criminal cases and improving national security as well as employment creation. This all in all leads to an active contributor who can push things forward

Failure to have a solid and sound way to life has seen many youths losing their selves to the wind, like chaff which the wind blows away. The youths are seen dropping out of school this being caused by mainly lack of finance in their family of belonging to fund the education.

It is true that not only the learned make it in life but education gives a strong foundation and direction to a person.

Faced with situations of hardships, youths are found in drug abuse, child marriages, criminal offences, girl-child impregnating, to mention just a few. Youths, are at the center of absolute strength. Fully supported youths think massively, hope for the best and will always chase a better tomorrow through chasing of their dreams to reality. There are several ways in which youths can be empowered and among these lies skill, financial, educational, moral and business empowerment. All these types of empowerments that can be showered youths with develops a youth into a vibrant human who is of paramount importance to his own and to the humans and environment surrounding him or her.

The youths of Zimbabwe require all forms of empowerment, be it skills, moral, educational, business and financial but above all skills and financial empowerment are of paramount importance to youths of Zimbabwe

Especially those youths residing in the rural settlements of the nation. Empowered these youths feel confident and capable to positively affect their selves and the environment around them.

Firstly, there is need to equip the youths psychologically so that their minds will be in a position to perform to its best level without any psychological nuisances troubling the mindset. The mind has to be at peace with no stresses of any sought for all to be held and performed to the desired levels

Education can then follow next, giving a sound and concrete thinking and knowledge base for the youths. Youths have to be allowed access to education and thus a form of empowering them. There is need to tackle all obstacles that hinder youths harvesting the most out of the education facilities of the nation. Both the psychological and education empowerment can be made possible through regular workshops conducted with the youths, either online or face to face. Skills empowerment entails allowing youths easy and at times free or funded acquiring lifetime skills so that they can be able to prosper their selves and their societies. Skilled youths do not necessarily desperately look for employment opportunities but rather they are in a position to be masters of their own.

Skills like carpentry, agriculture, welding, mechanics, pottery, caving, building, painting and other skills, are of paramount importance in empowering youths into action.

This automatically result in business empowerment given the youths have access to funds to their ventures. In Zimbabwe, the most devastated empowerment is in connection with finances.

The majority of youths have education, skills and business ideas with them but lack finances to put their dreams into reality. Access to borrowings is limited in most cases not talking of the current case where the banks are not allowed to provide the public with loans. Business empowerment can arise in the form of ideas and also funded projects.

Moreso, in Zimbabwe youths lack the empowerment they need to fully take charge of their selves and to lift the flag of their societies as a whole. All forms of empowerment highlighted above are very limited and scarce to be accessible by the youths. The youths do not have the necessary access to resources needed for them to fully be equipped in the move to sustainability.

Not only does the empowerment of youths lead to youth having self-financial freedom, it also allows us as youths to have a hand in the building of the country's economy. Zimbabwe requires external well-wishers who are pushed to empower youths and see them grow.
