THIS VIRTUE CALLED KINDNESS

By Chinaza Okoye, NIGERIA

Shall we paint a Scenario of an act of kindness to introduce you to the story?

Imagine a boy who lives in the slums and he returns from school tired and hungry . He searches the whole house for any available food to eat and sees a half bowl of garri left for him to eat. As he is about to eat, a girl walks up to him and begs him to offer her a portion of the garri he is eating. Don't forget that the garri is not filled up to the brim and is not even enough for him. What do you think he will do? Ignore the girl? In that case, it can be justified and say he was hungry that's why he could not share a meal. This kind of behaviour is expected because he has no Blood ties to the stranger why should he share a meal with her? In your imagination, will you share that half bowl of Garri with her or will you have it all to yourself? This Introduces us to the story of Mother Teresa of Calcutta Who spent her life serving others and giving even when it was not convenient. She was born on the 26th of August 1910 of an Albanian and Indian descent, a Roman Catholic and a Missionary. Who was she?

She was a nun and also a teacher in Eastern Calcutta. She was disturbed by the poverty surrounding her in Calcutta. As a result of the Bengal famine which took place in 1943, it brought misery and death to the city. This broke poor Mother Teresa's heart and she felt there was a need to serve the poor by staying with them. You know what she did?

She left the school!!!! Yea I can't also believe that.

In 1950, she founded "Missionaries of Charity" Which she described as 'the call within a call'.

THIS VIRTUE CALLED KINDNESS CONTD.

Join me as I walk you through the journey of Mother Teresa . She began helping the poor, remember I said she was a nun, well it didn't play out well because she left the convent to live among the poor people. There is a saying that says when you are In 'Rome, you behave as the Romans'.

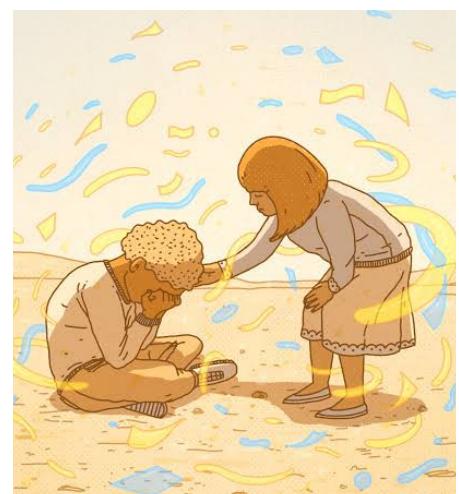

She adopted an Indian citizenship, she cared for the hungry, the naked, the homeless, the crippled,etc. As that time, the Missionaries of Charity which I mentioned earlier numbered about 400 brothers and 5000 Sisters worldwide at inception. They operated 600 missions, schools and shelters in 120 countries. Mother Teresa toured the world. She traveled to Europe in the late 1980's to expand the missionaries of charity there, she was not accepted fully. She didn't give up. She went to Africa, she visited Ethiopia to assist the hungry and radiation victims at Chernobyl and earth quake victims in Armenia.

Let's not go into much details, to wrap this gist, The Missionaries of charity expanded to one million can you imagine? By the 1990's. She devoted her life to care for the poor, the sick and the disadvantaged. Former UN secretary, Javier Perez de Cuellar refers to her as the United Nations, he says she is "peace in the world". I won't forget to mention the awards and recognitions she received because of her kind deeds.

Mother Teresa believed in service to the "poorest of the poor", she said and I Quote ' Do small things with great love'. Amongst her award was the Nobel peace prize in 1979 for the work undertaken in the struggle to overcome poverty and distress which also constitutes a threat to peace.

Now that this is a wrap, Mother Teresa's life challenges us to feed people in need both in our local and surrounding neighborhood by spreading love and joy to them. She died on 5th of September 1997.

AFRICAN CHILD

By Ronald Adjei-Kyreh, GHANA

My motherland is beautiful;
Its unique and different
Its story is told through its culture, people and nature

I am black
I am bold
I am beautiful
I am blessed
I am an African

Hello African child!
Do you know you are bold?
Hello African child!
Do you know you are different?
Your colour is one in a billion
Your land is rich with pure nature
Your culture is heard from its people and generations

You are a ululation of songs sung at weddings and festivals
Your resources make you outstanding in your own seat

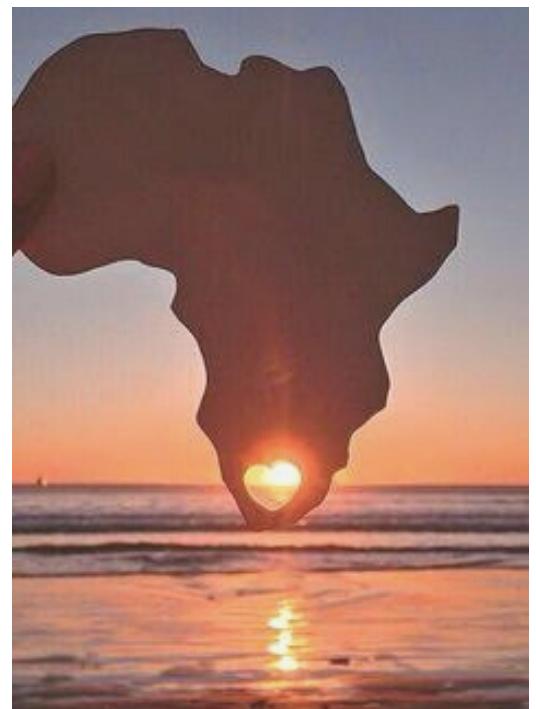

African Child do you you can go beyond where you think?
Do you know you can go beyond your destination?

Time tickles tactfully
Transfiguring tential tune to travel through tablets
You are always in hush
Drawing deep hopes to strengthen your past

You are perfect symbol of love and hospitality
You are jist of time bomb
Dressed in beauty of clothing
Ready to explode greatness

You are:
A ffectionate to
F riends of
R ich resources
I nfused to C reate an
A ntonym of their delusions

I always stand out...

UN-STRAIGHT: THE IDENTITY ISSUE

By Michelle Abraham, DUBAI

When I think who I am often at 2 a.m. on a sleepless night,
I come across the words of an old French
Madame who told me my identity is nothing but my fight
One where the world seems to be against me
and I find myself too small to win,
I ask myself if the price of being free is worth the peace I will find within
Or is the cost of losing my people, from friends to extended families or their extended families and all the scheduled upheaval,
too great to discover the meaning of sexualities?
My answer, I hope, is counted in its sincerity
Because if I am marked on being straight and hiding in meaningless familiarity
I might just not do so great

ENCOURAGING THE SPIRIT OF ENTREPRENEURSHIP AMONG YOUTH

By Samuel Ojediran, NIGERIA

'Always bear in mind that your own resolution to succeed is more important than any other'. - Abraham Lincoln.

'I will prepare and some day my chance will come'. - Abraham Lincoln.

'With Jeff Bezos' net worth hitting $200 Billions and Elon Musk's $100 Billions, when did you realise politicians aren't world wealthiest but business men and women'? - Samuel Ojediran

Often times when I write, I write out of instinct; meaning that something prompts me to put black on white. Recently, Jeff Besoz and Elon Musk made news headlines for good reasons. It's about their net worth that just hit $200 and 100 Billions respectively. This is breathtaking record ever. The duo are the owners of Online business mall, Amazon and SpaceX, a tech company in that order. Their story is inspiring to me and I seek to inspire and motivate some youth out there.

First, young people must realise that what drives the 21st century is science and technology, going forward. It's science and technology as it is manifested in information, communication and technology, ICT. The story of Jeff Besoz and Elon Musk, Mark Zuckerberg, owner of Facebook should inspire every young man and woman to success. These men all read computer science and the skill therein made them what they are today. From nothing, they became somebody. From zeros, they are now heroes. Their story is that of the founders of Twitter, Google, YouTube and hundreds of technological discoveries. This is where the future is. There is where the money is today. Recently, Zoom broke the technological space by becoming indispensable for communication purposes due to the confirmation by the pandemic of Covid-19. Another technological development currently endearing young people is coding. There are so many others. This piece is attest to the many ongoing discoveries, even though I may limited knowledge of all of them. Only those who search will find.

All these started as young people by getting the necessary skills. You too can get these skills today, irrespective of what you studied in the university. Today, governments, private organisations and individuals make use of these services and that's where these men are make their billions from. Most billionaires nowadays are entrepreneurs and not politicians because most politicians can't really explain the source of their wealth. Young people will therefore need to focus on acquiring the requisite skills and become empowered. Young ladies shouldn't be left out of the equation. We also have examples of women involved in this technological revolution. An example is Melanie Perkins, an Australian technology entrepreneur. She is known as the CEO and co-founder of Canva, an online graphic design and publishing tool. Interesting, most of these people made their entering into the technological space about 24 years while others are just making their debut.

This piece isn't detailed enough but it intends to provoke young people around the world to action. It is your duty as a young man or woman to go and find out about these people and their technological discoveries if acquiring their kind of knowledge interests you. Knowing more about them will encourage you to carve yourself out a niche in the technological cum entrepreneurship space. Please, endeavour to make hay while the sun shines. Peace.

TODAY'S YOUTH MATTERS

By Desire C. Mussa, MALAWI

These are just paragraphs of an article that whispers words of present hope to all kids, youths and elders. The story that motivates youths to take positive action now. It is a literature that reminds today's generation on what should be done in this era. This is an open page in black and white prints. It speaks great things that have been neglected for a long time. This is a true story that have been told for ages. However, it has been a ghost story in the land of living.

I am just an ordinary 21st century youth in my 20s. Two decades ago, I was a kid who dreamt to become a youth someday. I was greatly inspired with the International Youths Day headlines on the world news during my childhood days. I was being influenced with magnificent and vibrant youth topics, programmes and policies that were streaming live on community and national broadcasting stations. Now I am a concerned youth who is shocked after discovering that the great youthful things that I was told and heard during my childhood days were just folktales.

Nations have been showing interest on youths welfare, but they have done very little positive actions compared to what is on their papers. The voice of youth empowerment is louder and clear, however, the expected audience seems not to listen. This has proven that we are still living in the universe where youths are economically empowered on ordinary pages but not in physical action. It is very unfair, is it? Societies have marked youths as irresponsible and untrustworthy generation in human history, yet they are responsible for our shame, disappointments and pain.

Youths are very important as far as socio-economic development is concerned, because they have all energies that can sustain this generation and beyond. However, the current system has been deactivating youths for centuries now.

TODAY'S YOUTH MATTERS CONTD.

It seems like the universe does not understand that youths can help both kids and elders in walking if a chance to do so is given to them. It is a fact that youths are active engine for economic developments, but how can our societies expect us to be active and responsible while we are denied from performing our duties? Nevertheless, we are left outside the picture of opportunities, yet there are many opportunities for youths in our national and international policy pages. For instance, Workshops and international conferences have been conducted to improve and develop sound policies for youths, but little implementation has been done so far.

Sometimes, it does not make any sense to see how societies and nations treat youths. It is so sad to be in this 21st century timeline where youths with great abilities and qualifications are prevented from accessing opportunities. For instance, nowadays it is very pathetic to see vacancies from public and private sectors demanding abilities and qualifications that youths also have, and yet they do not employ them because they want 19 years plus experience. What kind of future are we generating? Should we just be waiting for another decades to be recruited? Not anymore!

A positive action has to be taken now. Yesterday's youths should understand their duties towards us because they have enough knowledge on what it meant to be a youth. Hence, we just need guidance and advise that can bring positive action in our communities. The great thing is that we already have what it takes to bring great developments our societies. All we need is just a simple motivation that can bring positive actions at local, national and global level. Today's youths need great inspiration just like the Adore way of motivating youths for positive action. Therefore, this is the best moment for families, communities, societies, nations, and whole world to start trusting youths that we can do development activities with passion and integrity.

YOUTH'S ROLE IN AFGHANISTAN

By Nilofar Nadari, AFGHANISTAN

Afghanistan is one of the largest country in the world that hold 63% of young population under the age of 25. It's the only reason that youth has become a target for each organization to take the responsibilities of their future development. Youth has a lot of role in a society such as; youth can be the heart to a society, they can take part in the peace process that Afghanistan really need it, in part of environment they can take different role model, in part of working volunteer to a different organization. Over all, youth with creative ideas can make the best outcome for a society.

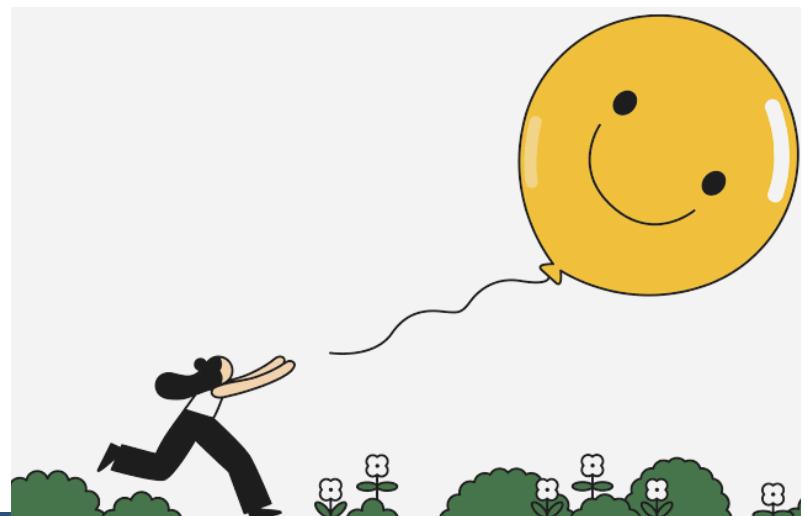

Youth in Afghanistan has a lot of good opportunity like, they can take scholarship in different countries, and they can take an active part in a society. On other hand, there are some important issues that Afghanistan government should focus on such as, poor education, health systems, high instances of child marriage, mass unemployment and the dangerous and perilous journeys many young people undertake as refugees feeling all these issue.

Poor education is the most important issue that youth in Afghanistan is facing, we have a lot of child-street that are busy on bagging money for their families, so they have no future. What we need to do is to make an opportunity for them that they must learn how to read and write. Other issue is health systems, Afghanistan has the best natural air but in winter due to making the home warm people use different thing such as; leaves, plastic, charcoal etc. Our responsibilities are to offer them a different kind of wood to make their homes warm.

To sum up, youth has an active part in a society. If we give them the right to work hard and use their creativity for a society, we won't face any problem in future.

THE TRUE HAPPINESS

By Keran Sarah Jayan
DUBAI

Over the past two decades, the positive psychology movement has brightened up psychological research with its science of happiness, human potential, and flourishing. It argues that psychologists should not only investigate mental illness but also what makes life worth living. Happiness can easily be taken to mean a state of constant joy and bliss or organizing the externals of your life so that everything runs perfectly. But true happiness isn't about being happy all the time.

The founding father of positive psychology, Martin Seligman, describes happiness as experiencing frequent positive emotions, such as joy, excitement, and contentment, combined with deeper feelings of meaning and purpose. It implies a positive mindset in the present and an optimistic outlook for the future. Happiness is not a stable, unchangeable trait but something flexible that we can work on and ultimately strive towards.

Philosophically speaking there are two paths to feeling happy, the hedonistic and the eudaimonic. Hedonists take the view that in order to live a happy life we must maximise pleasure and avoid pain. This view is about satisfying human appetites and desires, but it is often short lived. We continue to seek out new pleasures and experiences in order to "top up" our happiness and try to minimise unpleasant and painful feelings in order to keep our mood high.

In contrast, the eudaimonic approach takes the long view. It argues that we should live authentically and for the greater good. We should pursue meaning and potential through kindness, justice, honesty, and courage. We strive for meaning, using our strengths to contribute to something greater than ourselves. This may involve unpleasant experiences and emotions at times, but often leads to deeper levels of joy and contentment. So, leading a happy life is not about avoiding hard times; it is about being able to respond to adversity in a way that allows you to grow from the experience.

Experiencing adversity can actually be good for us, depending on how we respond to it. Tolerating distress can make us more resilient and lead us to take action in our lives. In studies of people facing trauma, many describe their experience as a catalyst for profound change and transformation, leading to a phenomenon known as "post-traumatic growth". Often when people have faced difficulty, illness, or loss, they describe their lives as happier and more meaningful as a result. Unlike feeling happy, which is a transient state, leading a happier life is about individual growth through finding meaning. It is about accepting our humanity with all its ups and downs, enjoying the positive emotions, and harnessing painful feelings in order to reach our full potential.

WHAT COVID-19 REMINDS US?

By Parwana Yousufy
AFGHANISTAN

I am a strong believer that there is a spiritual purpose behind everything that happens, whether that is what we perceive as being good or being bad, as I meditate upon this, I want to share with you what I feel the Covid-19 virus is really doing to us.

Firstly It is reminding us that we are all equal, regardless of our culture, religion, occupation, financial situation or how famous we are. This disease treats us all equally, perhaps we should to. It taught us that we are all connected and something that affects one person has an effect on another, the false borders that we have put up have little value as this virus does not need a passport.

It remind us, by oppressing us for a short time, of those in this world whose whole life is spent in oppression. We have known how precious our health is and how we have moved to neglect it through eating nutrient poor manufactured food and drinking water that is contaminated with chemicals upon chemicals. If we don't look after our health, we will, of course, get sick.

The shortness of life and of what is most important for us to do, which is to help each other, especially those who are old or sick. Our purpose is not to buy toilet roll.

Secondly it remind us how materialistic our society has become and how, when in times of difficulty, we remember that it's the essentials that we need (food, water, medicine) as opposed to the luxuries that we sometimes unnecessarily give value to.

We have realised that how important our family and home life is and how much we have neglected this. It is forcing us back into our houses so we can rebuild them into our home and to strengthen our family unit. It is reminding us that our true work is not our job, that is what we do, not what we were created to do. Our true work is to look after each other, to protect each other and to be of benefit to one another.

It taught us how to keep our egos in check. that no matter how great we think we are or how great others think we are, a virus can bring our world to a standstill.

And thirdly, the power of freewill is in our hands. We can choose to cooperate and help each other, to share, to give, to help and to support each other or we can choose to be selfish, to hoard, to look after only our self. Indeed, it is difficulties that bring out our true colors.

We have learned how we can be patient, or we can panic, we can either understand that this type of situation has happened many times before in history and will pass, or we can panic and see it as the end of the world and, consequently, cause ourselves more harm than good, this can either be an end or a new beginning. This can be a time of reflection and understanding, where we learn from our mistakes, or it can be the start of a cycle which will continue until we finally learn the lesson we are meant to, this Earth is sick. It is reminding us that we need to look at the rate of deforestation just as urgently as we look at the speed at which toilet rolls are disappearing off of shelves. We are sick because our home is sick. After every difficulty, there is always ease. Life is cyclical, and this is just a phase in this great cycle. We do not need to panic; this too shall pass.

Whereas many see the Covid-19 virus as a great disaster, I prefer to see it as a great corrector. It is sent to remind us of the important lessons that we seem to have forgotten and it is up to us if we will learn them or not.

ELECTIONS IN NIGERIA

By Samuel Ojediran
NIGERIA

It's no longer news that two Nigerian States will soon head to the polls. The two states concerned are Edo and Ondo states with their governorship elections coming in September 19 and October 10, 2020. The major political parties are the All Progressives Congress, APC (incumbent at the Federal and most states) and the People's Democratic Party, PDP. But election comes at many prices in Nigeria. These prices include ballot box snatching, vote buying, bribing of comprising electoral officials, delay in announcing election results, violent thuggery, arson, loss of lives, etc

While a vast majority of the people and electorates eschew these practices, the political class enjoys it. Over the years, elections have always been won through manipulation and worst still, through violence. The ignorant teeming masses have been impoverished, hence easily succumb to these manipulations in the form of vote buying. Voting buying is the act of inducing voters with money so that they will vote for your party or your candidate. Normally, payment comes after the assurance that the vote was cast for the particular candidate. This corrupt practice is achieved through well known tricks. For instance, agents planted by bad politicians ensure that the vote is cast for their candidates either by staying close to the polling unit to have clue of the choice of the voter. They have other tricks. It's after they have assurance of the vote that payment is made to the compromised voter. Other malfeasances including intimidation and protection for riggers by security agents in favour a certain candidate or political party and most of the time the ruling party. But in all cases, the major political parties, the APC and the PDP are the master riggers. Elections aren't free in third world countries including Nigeria where there are accusations and counter accusations after each election.

But recently, young political parties such the African Action Congress, AAC with integrity have started emerging. Many other smaller political parties will also participate in the elections

The upcoming state election in Edo and Ondo States is no doubt, between Mr Godwin Obaseki of the PDP and Mr Ize-Iyamu of the APC in one hand and between Mr Rotimi Akeredolu, Senior Advocate of Nigeria (SAN) of the APC and Mr Eyitayo Jegede, SAN of the PDP on another hand. As usual, it presents similar dangerous intrigues when compared to past elections. Already, there have been reports of pockets of violence in Edo state between the loyalists of the two main parties in the course of their campaigns and visit to the palace of the Oba of Benin. One interesting fact is that the men also swapped their parties within the last three years and contested against each other in the last election. The trend is somehow the same with the Candidates of Ondo state. Both were in the race in the last election too and closely contested against each other. One twist to the story in Ondo State is Mr Agboola Ajayi, Incumbent Deputy Governor to Mr Akeredolu are at variance with each other. He is battling to stand in the coming election. He decamped to PDP, failed to secure its ticket, then quickly moved to the Zenith Labour Party, ZLP.

Sadly, all of this, the people the politicians struggle to represent are at the receiving end. Their wish of a transparent, credible, free and fair election and true democratic process is never respected by politicians who go to any length to achieve their aim. All effort by the people and various stakeholders for electoral reform is yet to yield any results. Political leaders in third world countries like Nigeria are allergic to change, so long it's not in their favour.

AFGHAN YOUTH

By Masooma Yousufy, AFGHANISTAN

In society different group of people live such as; old, young, rich and poor, but the most important and significant group of people is the youth and fresh generation which play a conclusive role in society.

Youth can change the future of the society with their well being and good behavior. Therefore, countries that majority of its population is youth, are very optimist about their future as Afghanistan a country in south Asia is the youngest country with 63.7 percent of its population is under 25. Though the country has many problems, but youth are very motivated and optimist about their country and future of Afghanistan lies in the hand of its youth.

In past 18 years young Afghans develop in many different parts such as social, political, economic, workplaces and so on. As now young afghans are communicating with each other, with their country and finally the world through organizations, social medias, and debates. For example, in 2018,

Mohammad Ashraf Ghani welcomed National youth parliament of Afghanistan in August. The national youth parliament of Afghanistan consists of three young people from different provinces all of whom come together to discuss on policy and development in Afghanistan.

Moqadasa Ahmadzai, the deputy speaker of National youth parliament of Afghanistan argues that: "Being a young woman I see the ability and skills in myself to elect myself and politically represent women and young and play a positive role, I want to prove that the Afghan women can also make positive changes in the country."

Youth participation in politics and society, especially in a war-torn country like Afghanistan is essential to the wellbeing of both youth and the region. Many Afghan youths are highly active and participate in many social, political activities which is praiseworthy. All Afghans are very optimist about future of the country as youths are very motivated and working hard for bringing positive change in the country and the region.

In short, young Afghans are the role model for the Afghan society so that individuals of society makes them their role model in their every aspects of their life to get rid of the ongoing problems.

Key role of youth in society is to renew, refresh and maintain a civilization.

FEEDBACK FROM E-VOLV SESSIONS

Rohan Archarya, NEPAL

The whole workshop was very very effective and interesting! We were taught and given information about many vast topic such as leadership, personality development, and so on in just 30 minutes which was great! Even though the teachers/speakers were unknown to us but due to their friendly attitude and nature I could understand everything that they were explaining. I also enjoyed the game session very much! That workshop was just of 14 days but the thinks that I learnt from this workshop will help me in my whole life! Hope the adore group keeps on organizing such workshops and will not only help to make the life of a youth/individual/student better but whole world a better place.

Livana Tuladhar, NEPAL

I am very happy and grateful for the workshop. It was my first experience in the workshop that developed my way of thinking. I learnt many things on different topics that will be useful in my life. I felt my personal development changes before and after the workshop. The main part I felt important was I got to interact with high level teachers and got opportunity to present in front of huge international people. I think these workshops will help students like us very much to develop ourselves and skills.

FEEDBACK FROM LEVEL-UP SESSIONS

Ummie Ibrahim, NIGERIA

My name is Ummie Ibrahim. My experience in the English Communication Class has been really nice. The teachers are very generous and humble. I have learnt a lot of things so far which include Basic Introductions, Active and Passive voice, concord, tenses to mention but a few. I appreciate the way you all are caring for us. Now, I understand the skill of the study very well. Thank you.

Forogh Kohestani, AFGHANISTAN

In today's world, it is very important to know one of the international languages. English is one of the international languages we must to learn. In my country now a days it is necessary to know English for better job, higher education and other opportunities. So this online program that you all made for us will help as to gain our goals. And I appreciate ADORE for this wonderful opportunity that was made for the youths around world. As a learner I can say this program will help me to be able to learn English.

Thank you ADORE.

About the GYPSE program that was held on 29th August, 2020.

I talked about my country Ghana, of which I described the National flag, the location of Ghana on the globe and on the African map, foods, languages, culture and form of governance.

I also enjoyed the questions most people asked and I happily replied them.

It was a wonderful session and very memorable experience ☺

FEEDBACK FROM OUR ESTEEMED GUESTS

Mr. Mukesh Garg AUSTRALIA

On the day of the webinar, the session organizer opened the event with the introduction of the presenter. Over 15 participants joined the program. The Q&A session was also managed very well. After the conclusion of the presentation, I received a personalized message from the host thanking me for the delivery of the program.

I am impressed by the level of professionalism and the quality of the overall organisation of the event.

MY EXPERIENCE IN THE LEVEL-UP CLASS

Ms. Destiny Nwebe NIGERIA

A lady once said people only remember you for how you made them feel.

This is how I intended to be remembered in the minds of every other person who volunteered to be tutored by me in the Adore level up sessions. I wanted to make everyone remember me not for who I was but for how I made them feel of which I hope is a pleasant feeling

Every time it was time to have this sessions I couldn't bother that sometimes the sessions started later than should be; I just wanted to impart the little knowledge that I have in my head. It was a pleasant and fulfilling experience for me. The students were also helpful and not making the process a lengthy one..

The skill development class helped me appreciate the diversity in humans and that although we might be separated by boundaries and languages there is only one thing that can not separate us and that's love.

Love is one of the greatest gifts any volunteer can possess and that's what I hope I've been able to pass onto every one of the students.

From the Editor:

We say a big 'thank you' to all the young leaders and volunteers in ADORE For sending these write-ups and helping us conduct the online sessions and webinars.

The views expressed are those of the volunteers themselves, and we do not necessarily endorse them.

Your suggestions and criticisms are welcome.

Please write to us at info@adoreearth.org
