About Us

Adore is a global voluntary network of college students and professionals, who have come forward to motivate the budding youth into taking positive action. We conduct interactive sessions for children in schools, community areas and at various other such centres so that they emerge as aware and responsible citizens and better human beings.

CREATIVE OPPORTUNITIES IN NIGERIA AND HOW YOUTH CAN PROGRESS AHEAD

Arabambi Kehinde Joseph, Nigeria

Educationist /Entrepreneur / Counselor / Artist / Screenwriter / Liberation Enthusiast.

It is expected that great numbers of Youth surface in every country. However, the problem of unemployment is a typical issue facing Nigerian Youths where many graduates were jobless. Therefore, this article is an opener to the youth in shifting their mindset to creative opportunities that can sustain them and make them independent. Nigeria is a country so blessed with many resources and with the help of technology, good achievement is attainable. As a youth of the 1st century, we need to shift our mindset from white collar Job to entrepreneurship and creative opportunities and start working on ourselves. The idea is not to stop your Education but to develop yourself to engage in some skills that can liberate yourselves and the society. Creativity is the quality or ability to create or invent something. As I speak, there are lots of creative opportunities in Nigeria and thousands of which are yet to be discover like Sowing of bags and shoes, Dying and tying, Makeup Artist, Drawing and painting, Crafting, Stylist, Cake-maker, Event planner, Making of liquid soap, candles, chalks, bead making, baker, screenwriter, Artists, Programming among others which can be turn into industries. It's clear that most of the successful men in the world today are people who explored what they have to get what they want. "Thinkers" who think on what they can do independently, they create skillful environment here and find what can be done and make them a better person.

We have people like Aliko Dangote GCNO (Nigerian Billionaire Businessman), Ndubuisi Ekekwe (Founder of 1st Atlantic Semiconductors & Microelectronics Ltd), Jelani Aliyu (Nigerian Inventor), Seyi Oyesola (Nigerian trained doctor and inventor).

The question now is how do you progress ahead as a Youth?

- > Discover yourself
- ➤ Make a research on your abilities (read books)
- > Create that environment to develop yourself
- > Try something new
- ➤ Go on training and retraining (YouTube, seminars)
- ➤ Be diligent in your doings
- ➤ Believe in yourself
- > Go for opportunities
- > Be time conscious

LEVEL UP

To develop basic skills are required for career development through interactive online sessions

As a youth we need to be sensitive to the needs around us. That's where we can start developing our ideas of creativity. To progress in life you need to solve a problem that will take you to the next level. Every Youth need to have a shift of mind-set to be an employer instead of been employee. As a youth you must be a computer literate. We are in a Technological age, you are expected to have a full Knowledge and right applications of online resources that is capable of increasing your abilities E.g. like advertising your skills online through Facebook, Twitter and the rest, Research work, connecting to people etc.

In conclusion, unemployment will not be a threat to any youth if they start building and looking out for creative opportunities. By so doing they will not be a liability to anyone rather makes them self-dependent and contribute greatly to the Economical growth of their Nation.

THE ROLE SOCIAL MEDIA AND THE RISE OF BEHAVIOURAL TENDENCIES AMONG YOUTH IN NIGERIAN TERTIARY INSTITUTIONS

YASIR YAWALE

Department of Educational Psychology, Bayero University Kano, Nigeria

History was made in 2003 with the emergence of technology creation, when assorted phones and communication devices penetrated most homes in to the hands of students. A recent Mobile Africa 2018 study conducted in Kenya, Nigeria, Uganda, Ghana, and South Africa by GeoPoll and World Wide Worx indicates that Internet access via phones is on the rise in Africa, especially for Facebook use, which stands out as the most common phone activity among the countries surveyed. For example in Nigerian the users of social media increase rapidly. Estimates indicate that "out of approximately 150 million Nigerians, 87 million own mobile phones that can send and receive SMS messages and 44 million have internet access". (Ndaku, 2013). This figure may have tremendously increased in 2019. Also Papoola (2014), posited that at least 7.1 million people use Facebook daily in Nigeria, while more than 500,000 are on Twitter, making the country Africa's biggest user of the social media platform. Other forms of social media include YouTube, Whatsapp, 2go, Flickr etc. Nigeria has witnessed an exponential growth in internet usage by young adolescents. From a modest 200,000 users in 2000, now an estimated 51% of the populations uses internet. (Bartlett, et'al (2015). According to the Nigerian Communications Commission, as of February 2018, there are a total of 186,410,197 active mobile lines in Nigeria. This is a twofold increase from the 93 million reported in 2016 by the commission. We must harness the creativeness of the youth for the economic growth of Nigeria. Bearing in mind that the internet opens up a world of possibilities and opportunities to the youths, the consequences of ignorantly using social media by the youths should not be overlooked. This paper will therefore look at how social media contribute to the negative tendencies among youths in Nigerian tertiary institutions. It further identified some of the thriving development of Social Media, as well as discuss its benefits and risks and their implication to counseling psychologists who would be willing to embrace them in their practice.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH

As the fastest growing economy today, India is home to a fifth of the world's youth. As India undergoes rapid economic, demographic, social and technological shifts it is important for today's youth to not be impeded by preconceived notions of career opportunities available to them. While traditional careers such as medicine, law, accountancy, engineering and government jobs remain relevant, with the advent of automation and digitization the job market is seeing an exponential increase in demand for top managers, technocrats and scientists. According to LinkedIn's 2020 emerging jobs report, roles in technology are set to gain pace as the country's most in-demand jobs with Blockchain Developer being the fastest-growing profession for 2020. Other tops spots in tech were taken by Artificial Intelligence specialist, Java Script Developer, robotic process automation consultant, full stack engineer and cyber security specialist. However it was interesting to notice jobs requiring original and creative thinking, situational adaptability, interpersonal communication and collaborative working such as account management, digital marketing & customer retention become critical, which highlight the importance of personable roles and soft skills in the age of digitization. On studying Indian and Global career trends one cannot deny the emergence of data analysis as a major player, with Consulting firm McKinsey estimating a need for 2 lakh data scientists in the next few years in India. Digital marketing is also growing at an ever increasing pace due to the tremendous upsurge of social media with even small and medium businesses venturing into the online space. Machine learning as well as Product management are increasingly in demand. When considering careers in non-technical fields one may look at Actuarial Science for those interested in mathematics and a career as a Financial Planner is an interesting an upcoming niche. Those who want to be involved in the medical and health field, being medical technologist can be a great option as well as careers in Pharmacovigilance (drug safety), Nutrition or Dietary Science and Marriage or Career counselling. Jobs in the clean energy sector are also on the rise with the Indian government pushing for alternative sources of power, including wind and solar. WithS half of its population below the age of 25, India's young population is its most valuable. The world today is more dynamic and uncertain than ever before and thus the youth must venture into new and exciting careers with a clear goal and preserve in order to make the best of that opportunity.
